

About the School

The Aviagen Production Management School emphasizes many important aspects of poultry science and its practical application to managing successful breeder and broiler operations through a mix of classroom lecture and hands-on field experience.

Who Should Attend

During the past 45 years, more than 900 men and women from over 100 countries have completed the Aviagen School. Because the students come from many different countries and climates, the School provides a great opportunity to not only learn from instructors, but also from each other's experiences. Many graduates of the course have held and currently hold prestigious senior management positions in many of the world's leading poultry companies.

Staff Info

The instructional staff includes Aviagen personnel from technical services, poultry health, genetic research and development, production and farm management, hatchery operations, finance and accounting, and general administration. Guest lecturers from leading poultry science universities, as well as allied industry representatives, also participate in course instruction.

Course Value

The course brings industry experts and participants from around the world together to discuss up-to-date information in all areas of poultry science. Participants also apply what they learn in the classroom by taking field trips to breeder and broiler facilities throughout Alabama.

Location Information

Students are housed and classroom lectures take place at the Tom Beville Conference Center and Hotel located on the campus of the University of Alabama in Huntsville. UAH is strategically located in Cummings Research Park, the second largest research park in the United States and home to numerous high technology and research companies, including Aviagen.

Registration Information

The instructional portion of the course is free to all accepted applicants. The cost for the students is $2,800.00 which covers housing at the Beville Center, meals, ground transportation and course materials. Weekend activities are optional and are at the cost of the participants.

For an application to the School, please contact the Aviagen representative in your area. You can also download the form online at the Aviagen website (www.aviagen.com), then fax the completed application to: Aviagen School Manager, Aviagen, Huntsville, AL USA. Fax number +1.256.890.3919.

All instruction is offered in English only so it is essential that each applicant have a speaking and writing knowledge of the English language.

Enrollment is limited and qualified applicants will be chosen from all eligible applications.

"The vision of the Aviagen School remains focused on helping the next generation of managers prepare for success in the global poultry industry,"

said Bob Dobbie, Aviagen President of International Business. "It is the perfect environment for learning from some of the top educators and specialists in their fields and the atmosphere is uniquely designed to encourage networking and the development of relationships among attendees."